A plea for help from 35-year-old Cody Lee Vestal at Rhea Medical Center in Dayton, Tenn., led to the discovery of the bodies of his mother and her boyfriend on Georgia 325 in Union County.

Vestal confessed to Union County Sheriff's Detective Tom Mangifesta that he murdered his mother, 60-year-old Marilyn Laughlin, and her 52-year-old live-in boyfriend Anthony Poat, Union County Sheriff Mack Mason said.

Vestal and Poat had a conversation on Saturday, March 14. Detective Mangifesta said Vestal confirmed that confrontation.

Dayton, Tenn. police confronted Vestal after he told medical workers at Rhea Medical Center on Saturday that he wanted to kill himself, authorities in Tennessee and Georgia said.

Vestal returned to his vehicle after telling Rhea Medical Center staff that he wanted to kill himself.

Hospital officials called Dayton police who found

Vestal in a Nissan Xterra outside the hospital. Inside his vehicle was a loaded AR-15 rifle, with a second, fully loaded clip.

Vestal was arrested on a charge of disorderly conduct by Dayton police. En route to jail, Vestal began to have convulsions. He apparently had taken two bottles of sleep aid pills, authorities said.

Vestal was returned to Rhea Medical Center, and then airlifted to Erlanger Hospital in Chattanooga, Tenn., authorities said.

The vehicle Vestal was driving was registered to Marilyn Laughlin, of Georgia 325, in Blairsville.

Unaware of a double homicide at that address, Dayton police contacted the Union County Sheriff's Office and asked them to tell Laughlin that her son was in intensive care in the Chattanooga hospital, Union County Sheriff's Detective Sgt. Andrew Hammond said.

Sgt. Hammond said that Union County sheriff's deputies arrived at the home that Laughlin shared with Poat on Sunday, March 15.

Sgt. Hammond said that deputies knocked on the door, but were unable to get anyone to answer. Deputies returned on Monday, and the scene was the same as it was on Sunday.

"I got a call Monday night of a body inside a house. We went there on a welfare check," Sgt. Hammond said. "We kicked the door in, went inside the home and discovered two bodies."

It was the home where deputies had tried to reach Marilyn Laughlin, Sgt. Hammond said.

"Nothing had been touched since Sunday. The same lights were on, and the cars were parked exactly the way they were on Sunday," Sgt. Hammond said. "We dis-

Cook said. "She can conquer any behavior, it's like she has magic dust, and it works."

Large turnout for Ag Day at Farmers Market

Crowds of people from all over the region took to the Union County Farmers Market for the inaugural celebration of Union County Agriculture Day on Sunday, March 21.

The Union County Future Farmers of America, Nelson's Tractor, the North Georgia News and West Printing sponsored Ag Day 2015.

Festivities featured fun for the whole family in a three-fold Farmers Market extravaganza: the FFA Blue and Gold Auction, the John Deere Drive Green event and market vendors who set up shop in advance of the market opening on June 6th.

More than 200 items were consigned for the auction, ranging from pipefittings to farm tractors and motorcycles. Over 200 bidders registered for the event, and preliminary figures put proceeds between $65,000 and $70,000, of which the Union County FFA will receive a commission.

In auction terminology, a bell ringer is an item that sells particularly well, and the bell ringer for Saturday was a blue Ford 3910 four-wheel drive tractor that was expected to bring in $8,500, but netted $12,000.

And Friday night, during the livestock portion of the auction, animal sales exceeded $6,000. More than half of those sales went directly to FFA students who raised market hogs themselves.

The Blue and Gold Auction livestock and farm equipment sale serves as a fundraiser for the FFA to defray some of the costs of student attendance at state and national leadership conventions, as well as puts money towards growing and farming initiatives at the high school, and helps these young entrepreneurs gain practical business experience.

"Not only was this a good business venture for our agriculture community, it was a heck of a learning opportunity for our students," said John Pettit, the agriculture education teacher and FFA advisor at Union County High School. "Yeah, we raised some money and that's great, but the real value of that was what the kids are learning."

"We had probably 35 to 40 kids that worked on various things preparing for this auction and actually working for this auction. And they've got a real experience. They've got something that, if nothing else, they'll remember it ers spoke, they said, okay, it's time to announce our district winners, and they just kind of shot into it. They were like, 'So, if Union County could please come up here.' I looked over at Coach Hunter, and I was like, what? We walked up there and they handed us our
